

The Beehive

Honeybees... the tiny species that have the vision and the capacity to construct their homes. The beehive is one such unbeatable structure.

The beehive comprises of honeycombs... a mass of hexagonal cells which are of uniform sizes... an appropriate fit for the size of the bees.

This chambered structure is both practical and utilizable as per the functioning of the bees. Indeed a creative home by the creative animal.

